

Stages/Options

1. Consult with the researcher:

At this stage you supply the materials about your background to our researchers. After close analysis, the analyst can decide whether the future research is possible or not.

This depends on a number of factors – sufficiency of documents provided; availability of archival documents; location from which your relatives emigrated and the time frames etc.

2. Genealogical research:

This stage revolves around the specialist closely studying the documents provided by you and tracing them back to the place your family is originally from. The researchers will go into local archives to track family history. Usually, the research is traced back to 2 lines of the family (husband/wife). Once research is complete you will be provided with a report in English. Sometimes photocopies of archival documents on your family history can be attached. This depends on the archive policies.

Research price varies from approximately $200 to $300. (Depending on the depth of research needed and the availability of documents, unforeseen circumstances and expenses may result in the price varying inconsiderably.)

3. Pursuit of long lost relatives:

Based on the information retrieved in the course of the archival research/ provided by the client, the researcher can conduct field research, i.e. travel to the 'source village' and find the client's relatives, family house etc.

At the end of this stage you will be provided with contact information of people found on location – be it relatives or neighbors etc., who carry information about the client's family.

Field research price varies from $50 to $100. (The price is subject to change if the destination to be researched is situated at a great distance.)

4. Results:

After the research has been completed and our invoice has been paid in full, Cobblestone Freeway will provide the client with a documented report describing the researchers findings and the basis for his conclusions as well as copies of relevant documents.

Note: If you are interested in receiving an example of previously completed research, please let us know and we will send one to you.
